

MILKBOY

Evan Parizot

THE THIEF

Our half-elf rogue was born into a family of cow herders in a small rural village. They were not wealthy, but they made do with what they had. Growing up, our rogue learned the ins and outs of tending to the cows, and quickly became an expert in the field.

As the years went by, the rogue grew restless. The daily routine of tending to the cows had become monotonous and boring. Our rogue yearned for adventure and excitement, something that would add a little spice to their life.

One day, while out on a stroll, our rogue stumbled upon a group of thieves in the midst of a heist. Intrigued by their swift movements and agility, our rogue decided to follow them. The thieves were impressed by our rogue's skills and took them under their wing, teaching them the art of thievery.

Our rogue quickly became one of the best thieves in the group, and eventually struck out on their own. Using their cow herding job as a cover, our rogue began to steal from the wealthy merchants and nobles that passed through their village.

With each successful heist, our rogue became bolder and more confident. They began to travel to nearby towns and cities, always taking care to keep their herding job as a cover.

Years went by, and our rogue's reputation as a master thief began to grow. They became known as the "Milkboy" a name that struck fear into the hearts of merchants and nobles throughout the land.

Despite the danger that came with their chosen profession, our rogue was content. They had found the adventure and excitement they had been searching for, and they were finally living life on their own terms.

As our half-elf rogue continued to hone their skills as a thief, they began to attract the attention of some of the most powerful and dangerous criminals in the land. One such criminal was a notorious gang leader known as the Black Viper.

The Black Viper was a shadowy figure who operated from the shadows, controlling a vast criminal empire that spanned the entire region. Our rogue had heard rumors of the Black Viper's activities, but had always avoided crossing paths with the gang leader.

That changed one fateful night, when our rogue attempted to steal a valuable gemstone from a wealthy merchant's estate. Unbeknownst to our rogue, the gemstone was also being targeted by the Black Viper.

As our rogue made their way through the estate, they were ambushed by a group of the Black Viper's henchmen. A fierce battle ensued, with our rogue using their expert thief skills to outmaneuver their attackers.

Despite their best efforts, however, our rogue was eventually overpowered and captured by the Black Viper himself. The gang leader was impressed by our rogue's skills, and offered them a deal - join the Black Viper's gang, and become one of the most powerful and feared thieves in the land.

Our rogue was torn. On the one hand, joining the Black Viper's gang would mean giving up their independence and freedom. On the other hand, it would also offer them the chance to achieve untold riches and power.

In the end, our rogue decided to accept the Black Viper's offer. They became one of the gang's most trusted lieutenants, using their skills as a cow herder and a master thief to pull off some of the most daring and lucrative heists in the region.

But even as they rose through the ranks of the Black Viper's gang, our rogue never forgot their humble roots as a cow herder. They continued to tend to their family's cows, even as they plotted and schemed with some of the most dangerous criminals in the land.

And though they had achieved wealth and power beyond their wildest dreams, our rogue knew that they would always be a cow herder at heart.
